It is not intended to constitute legal, tax, accounting or investment advice. Prospective investors should consult their own advisors about such matters. Information relating to the Fund is confidential and may not be reproduced, redistributed or otherwise disclosed to any other person under any circumstance. These materials are provided for informational purposes to persons who meet certain financial and other requirements. They are not an offer to sell or a solicitation to buy Fund interests. Any such offering will be made through the Fund's Private Placement Memorandum and related documents. The information provided above is based on information believed to be correct, but subject to revision and audit adjustment. All referenced returns are purely historical and past performance is no guarantee of future results. *SEC registration does not imply a certain level of skill or training. (1) All risk metrics were calculated using net returns since strategy inception in 2010. (2) Net return is the gross return reduced for a 2% management fee, a 20% incentive fee (as applicable), as well as research expenses, independent audit fees, tax preparation fees, taxes (as applicable), board of director costs (as applicable) and other miscellaneous items. (3) A core long position is defined and calculated as being 1% or greater of the total long position market value. (4) Performance presented represents the composite performance for the Fourthstone Opportunity Fund LP and the Fourthstone Offshore Opportunity Fund Ltd (collectively, the "Fund"). Fund returns are calculated by the Administrator for the fund and are net of all fees assuming a single investment in the Fund since inception. Individual fund and investor results will vary. Results between January 2014 and July 2017 reflect actual performance from numerical data provided by the Fund Administrator, including deduction of standard fees and expenses. During this period the Fund was comprised of the Fourthstone Opportunity Fund LP only with a single expense level. After August 1, 2017, the Fund had two feeder funds of interests with different expense levels. The returns displayed after August 1, 2017 show a blended return inclusive of the two feeder funds. These differences will impact individual returns. Upon your request, Fourthstone LLC will provide the performance numbers for each fund's individual account. Performance numbers are audited through 2024 with unaudited estimates for the period through the date of this report. Monthly results include any accrual of performance fees; actual performance fees may not be allocated or paid until a later date. (5) Performance information shown from March 2010 – January 2014 is representative of the account managed by the Portfolio Manager of Fourthstone LLC prior to the formation of the fund with pro forma fees of 2% management & 20% incentive fee applied to more accurately represent the returns that an actual investor in the fund would have achieved during the time period. Returns for this period were audited by Rothstein Kass (KPMG). These accounts were solely managed by the Portfolio Manager using a substantially similar investment methodology to the one being used by the Fund. The performance is not that of Fourthstone LLC and should not be viewed as an indication of how the Fund would have performed in the past or will perform in the future. The rate of return calculation method used to measure the actual performance of the separately managed accounts and the S&P 500 include the change in market value of investments held, dividends, interest, accrued income and brokerage fees, for the SMA. (6) Past performance is not indicative of future results. (7) Upside ratio is calculated as the monthly geometric return of the fund divided by the monthly geometric return of the benchmark minus one, when the benchmark has a positive return. The downside ratio is calculated the same but when the benchmark has a negative return. The rate of return of the accounts are affected by the timing and size of deposits and withdrawals. This methodology is commonly used when determining the actual return of a portfolio. (8) The investor breakdown is an aggregate of three funds(Master, QP & SCF)as of 6/30/26. Results for the Funds as compared to the performance of the Standard & Poor's 500 Index (the "S&P 500") and the NASDAQ Bank Index are for informational and general comparative purposes only. The S&P 500 is an unmanaged market capitalization-weighted index of 500 common stocks chosen for market size, liquidity, and industry group representation to represent U.S. equity performance. It is commonly used as a reference point by investment professionals. The NASDAQ Bank Index is a is a market capitalization-weighted index including securities of NASDAQ-listed companies classified according to the Industry Classification Benchmark (ICB) as Banks. Its constituents include ~243 regional and community banks that are included in the Funds' investment universe. There are significant differences between such indices and the investment program of the Fund. The Fund will not invest in all or necessarily any significant portion of the securities, industries, or strategies represented by such indices. References to indices do not suggest that the Fund will, or is likely to, achieve returns, volatility, or other results similar to such indices. No representation is made hereby with respect to the accuracy or completeness of such data. The performance data of various indices mentioned in this update are updated and released on a periodic basis before finalization. The performance data of various indices presented herein was current as of the date of the presentation. Please refer to data returns of the separate indices if you desire additional or updated information. Indices are unmanaged, and their performance results do not reflect the impact of fees, expenses, or taxes that may be incurred through an investment in the Fund. The S&P 500 returns assume dividend reinvestment. An investment cannot be made directly in an index. Accordingly, comparing results shown to those of such indices may be of limited use.
